AUSTRIANS IN GALICIA LOSE OVER 300,000 BEFORE RELAXING THEIR GRIP ON LUBLIN

Struggling to Save Themselves from Extinction

(By International News Service.)
PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—Sweeping across the Vistula river, striking at the rear of the Austrian army struggling to save itself from annihilation, Russian troops destroyed a large portion of the commissary supplies of the enemy, according to an official announcement here today. The Russians are threatening the entire line of communication of the Austrian army and may succeed in preventing them from retreat. By their sudden stroke directed from Russian Poland over the Vistula the Russians compelled the Austrians, who had fortified their positions, to fall back on being outflanked. The Russians are now crossing the San in force and capturing many prisoners.

Five Army Corps Are Defeated In East Prussia

(By International News Service.)
BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Wireless, via Sayville, N. Y.—General Hindenberg, German commander in East Prussia, telegraphed Emperor William from Vilna that the Russian army, consisting of the second, third, fourth and twentieth corps, to reserve divisions and five cavalry divisions, were completely defeated. The Russian casualties are heavy and the number of prisoners increasing, while destruction of the army continues. Enormous spoils of war were captured. In Grodno the army defeated at Lyck comprised, in addition to 2,000 men, the remnant of the sixth corps and part of the third Siberian corps. Headquarters announces heavy fighting in France which still is indecisive although the French assault was repulsed.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—The fiercest fighting of all preceded the Russian victory at Lublin, in a gorge near Mikolaieff, which the Russians have named the "Valley of Death," according to soldiers. Russian artillery attacked the Austrians at night and continued until the gorge was filled with dead, estimated at 15,000. From a hill overlooking the battlefield an Austrian general witnessed the standards surrendered to the enemy and then shot himself.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Petrograd dispatches place the Austrian losses in Galicia at 300,000 killed, wounded and prisoners, nearly one-third of their forces. They also lost 1,000 guns.

MOSCOW RETREAT OUT HERODED BY GERMAN REPULSE

GLIMPSE AT ONE OF THE CROWDING CATASTROPHES OF THE WORLD.

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Sept. 15.—A Times correspondent from Melun described the rout and retreat of the Germans during a hurricane and torrents of rain, with the artillery stalled in mud. "I talked with wounded soldiers who returned from the pursuit, which will go down with the terrible retreat from Moscow as one of the crowding catastrophes of the world. Men fled, he said, like animals cornered. Miles of roadways were littered with guns, knapsacks, cannon and piles of dead men and horses. As the retreat rolled back, the allies rushed the forces at their weakest points."

RAILROADS ARE DENIED RIGHT TO RAISE RATES

Railroads operating in California have been denied the right to charge extra fare to passengers occupying full drawing rooms by a decision handed down by the California State Railroad commission. Commissioner John Eshelman, writing the opinion, held that the railroads had submitted no evidence to show that their passenger rates were too low and that they must look for success in their present plight to the Pullman company.

The four railroads, the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe, the Western Pacific and the Tonopah & Tidewater, which asked for the right to charge one and one-half fare for a passenger occupying a compartment, and a double fare for one occupying a drawing room, made the plea that the purchase of a full compartment or drawing room by an individual cut down the capacity of their cars and consequently their passenger receipts.

FREIGHTER SLAIN IN DISPUTE OVER SOME LOOSE HAY

WM. REED FIRES SHOT THAT KILLS M. J. BUCKLEY AT SAND SPRINGS.

A shooting affair occurred at Sand Springs station, between here and Fairview, at an early hour Wednesday morning which resulted in the death of M. J. Buckley, the gun being in the hands of Wm. Reed, commonly known as "Tex." Death resulted almost instantly, says the Fallon Eagle.

Both were engaged in teaming between here and the mining camps. Buckley owned and drove a ten horse team, while Reed was driving a 20 horse team for J. N. Tedford.

From information gathered from the proceedings of the coroner's jury and from eye witnesses to the affair, it appeared that Buckley got up early and discovering that one of Reed's horses had got loose and been eating his hay, began cursing and abusing Reed. The latter, awakened by the loud talk, began dressing. He told Buckley he could not help it, but that he would return a bale of hay when they reached Fallon. Buckley declared that would not do him any good. Hot words followed and Buckley started toward Reed with a long-handled, round pointed shovel and was almost over him when Reed reached for his gun and fired.

The bullet entered Buckley's body an inch to the left of the navel and ranged upward about four inches in its course, lodging on the right side of the spinal column, severing various arteries. Death followed in less than 15 minutes.

An aftermath of the shooting occurred on Thursday morning when George W. Plant, who had been sent out to take charge of the outfit formerly entrusted to Wm. Reed, fell from the tongue of one of the wagons and was killed. One of the big 6,000 pound wagons passed completely over his body from the left foot to the right shoulder. He had only been in Fallon a few days and was bacheling in the same cabin with J. M. Buckley, who was killed the day before.—Fallon Eagle.

It is estimated by the Belgian war office that in this fighting 2,000 Germans were killed. No figures on Belgian casualties are given out. The war office statement reads: "The importance of the recent battle of our army, and the Germans is confirmed by the inactivity of the enemy yesterday and today, and by the latest details of the enemy's severe losses. Retirement of our division on Antwerp was effected without any attack by the enemy."

NISH, Sept. 15.—The attempt of an Austrian army of 90,000 men to invade Serbia near the junction of the Drina and Save rivers resulted disastrously for the Austrians, who lost one-ninth of their forces. The Serbian victory was fought September 8 and 9 and the result was officially announced by the government today. With the intention of holding back our offensive movement on the River Drina the enemy massed during the first days of September an army of 90,000 along a front extending from Raca to Jajia. PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—The battle of Goldapp, 80 miles southeast of Koenigsberg, is officially announced by the war office as follows: "After a steady withdrawal for several days before superior forces of Germans, the Russians received heavy reinforcements and drove the enemy back. Reforming the Germans again took the offensive and attacked our positions at Goldapp. They stormed our positions with bayonet charges in face of a withering fire, but were repeatedly repulsed. Finally, after a bloody conflict that lasted ten hours, the enemy retreated with our troops in hot pursuit. Our victory was due to the clever strategy of General Rennenkampf, who drew the enemy's troops out until they were too weak to overcome us."

UNCERTAIN TONE OF INFORMATION IS CAUSING DOUBT

ATTEMPT OF THE GERMAN RIGHT WING TO RALLY SEEMS A FAILURE.

(By International News Service.)
PARIS, Sept. 15.—Supported by reinforcements from Belgium the right wing of the retreating German army under Von Kluck rallied by giving battle to the allies north of the River Aisne. Further to the east and north of Rheims the Germans also resisted, but the retreat east of Argonne forest is reported continuing.

This is the situation at the front today so far as could be gathered by advices from scene of action, government reports.

Statements from the war office during the past 24 hours are confusing. One official statement is as follows: "The enemy appears to make a stand along the Aisne. On the center, similarly it would seem as if the enemy intends to resist on the heights to the northwest and north of Rheims." A statement from Bordeaux said: "On our left the enemy appeared to the north of Aisne between Compeigne and Soissons on a line of defense which it has been forced to abandon. In the center, likewise, the Germans prepared a defensive position behind Rheims which they were unable to hold."
